Curated by Giulia Civardi, Valeria Facchin, and Lavinia Filippi, London.

Taking its title from a sculpture by Himali Singh Soin, Too Much and Not Enough brings a selection of works from the Nicoletta Fiorucci Collection in dialogue with the artist's work.

Envisioned by Singh Soin within the London spaces of the Foundation – which acts as a temporary custodian for the artist's sculpture – this collaborative display reflects on ideas of wholeness, voids, emptiness and fullness, across various scales, from the molecular to the cosmic.

In ancient Mayan mathematics, zero and infinity were considered equal. Each work bears a sense of loss, of absence and of longing, and together, they explode with presence and therapeutic redemption. By bringing forces of opposition together not as ends of a spectrum, but as parts of each other, the exhibition offers a third view, away from the dualism of the gridded world.
